

COVID-19 Health and Safety Information for Contractors, Vendors and Guests on York Campuses

Purpose

The following document outlines what COVID-19 health and safety information can be shared with contractors, vendors and guests who are entering and/or performing work on York University campuses or sites.

Procedure

All individuals must adhere to public health measures in place at York.

When Faculties, departments or York community members are arranging for contractors, vendors, and guests to attend York's campuses or sites, the following information can be shared with these individuals:

- Contract documents or agreements (where appropriate), which include language around their responsibilities for workplace health and safety as an employer. This is an established process that should continue.
- Contractors and vendors are responsible for the workplace health and safety of the persons they employ and for reviewing and updating their workplace health and safety protocols, as applicable, in accordance with public health and Ministry of Labour, Training and Skills Development requirements.
- YU Screen remains available, and York community members and guests are encouraged to use it as a self-assessment tool.
- Individuals are not to attend campus, or leave immediately if feeling unwell.
- York University continues to strongly encourage receiving a full COVID-19 vaccine series, including booster doses when eligible.
- Wearing a mask in indoor spaces, except when eating or drinking, is strongly recommended by all individuals on York campuses.
- COVID-19 measures, including the requirement to be vaccinated, may be re-instated at York University, at any time.
- Additional information on York University's approach to the pandemic can be found on York University COVID-19 Fact and Information Sheet and the Better Together website.
